Father, Co-Workers, Friends Honor Elliott Speer's Memory

More Than 1200 Gathered In Memorial Chapel and Camp Hall For Tribute To Mt. Hermon's Late Headmaster.

DR. MOTT ADDRESSES FACULTIES AT RECEPTION

More than 1200 persons gathered on the Mount Hermon campus last Sunday to honor the memory of Elliott Speer. "His going lays on us all a heavier duty to keep the sacred trust of the great tradition," said Dr. Robert E. Speer, father of the late Headmaster, and principal speaker at the Memorial service which filled the chapel and Camp Hall. And it was in this spirit that the throng of educators, alumni, students and friends paid tribute.

The impressive service opened with an organ prelude by Carlton L'Hommedieu, Mount Hermon school organist, and reached its climax with Dr. Speer's stirring address. The school choir, the trustees, and those participating in the service entered the chapel to the processional hymn, "This is My Father's World." Then followed the invocation concluding with the Lord's Prayer by Rev. Lester P. White, Mt. Hermon school pastor, a scripture reading by David R. Porter, and a prayer by Dr. John R. Mott. The singing of "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go" was followed by a second scripture reading by Dr. Boynton Merrill, and the singing of "He Who Would Valiant Be." Dr. Speer was introduced by President Wilfred W. Fry and after the address Dr. Paul D. Moody led in prayer. The recessional hymn "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand" and the benediction pronounced by Dr. Luther A. Weigle concluded the services.

Dr. Speer in his memorial address gave a naccount of Elliott Speer's life from his boyhood in Englewood to the tragic ending of his headmastership at Mount Hermon. He was born in Englewood November 1, 1898, and was educated there in private and public schools until he entered Phillips Academy, Andover, in the fall of 1913. Mr. Frederick Newton of the Andover faculty, who is President of the Mt. Hermon Alumni Association, recalls clearly Elliott's career at Andover. "I want to tell you how much I admired and respected and loved Elliott. I remember him distinctly as a young boy only fourteen years of age entering the second year of course and know what a splendid record in every sphere of school activity he made." "All of us," says Mr. Allan Heely, "who were with him at Andover felt that Elliott had integrity of purpose and he won a kind of respect which few of us dared to seek. From Andover he went in the fall of 1916 to Princeton, where his service was interrupted by war service in connection with the British Army Y.M.C., so that he was not graduated from Princeton until February '21. The secretary of the class of '21, Mr. John H. Leh, writes of him "Elliott was without doubt one of the world's finest men. Everybody who knew him loved him."

He was married on March 12, 1921, to Miss Charlotte Rose Welles, a graduate of Vassar, and they sailed at once for Scotland where he took his theological course in Edinburgh and then returned for two years of City Mission work in New York City on the staff of the First Presbyterian Church. In the fall of 1924 he was called to be chaplain and head of the Bible department of Lafayette College and after two years' service there, came in June 1926 to the service of The Northfield Schools. After five years' work as president of the board of trustees of the Schools, in association with and then in succession to Mr. W. R. Moody, he felt that this position no longer required a salaried officer and resigned to succeed Dr. Cutler as headmaster of Mount Hermon School. In further preparation for this new work he returned to Edinburgh for a year of graduate work in education from 1931 to 1932, and then took up his duties as headmaster, only to lay them down in the tragedy of his death on September 14, 1934.

All over the world men had come to love and trust him and to anticipate for him a great service in the field of leadership and Christian education, and in the work of the Christian church. Of his work for the two schools Dr. Cutler has written: "You have put a sense of security underneath all of us during the years you have been with us. We have learned to look up to you as our leader. Your devotion to the work has been ideal and your accomplishments phenomenal. You have caught the meaning of the work and the spirit of the Founder who wanted to help others." "No one in our time," writes Arthur Kinsolving, rector of Trinity Church in Boston, "has used youth to greater advantage than Elliott. None has moved through this maze

HONORED AT MEMORIAL

THE LATE ELLIOTT SPEER

Mount Hermon Notes Edited by The Members of the Mount Hermon Press Club

Service Held for late Mr. Elliott Speer

In a memorial service held last Sunday for the late Headmaster of the Mount Hermon School, Hundreds of relatives, students and friends paid a touching tribute to Elliott Speer. The service was one of beauty, and one which will never be forgotten in the lives of many Hermon sympathizers. The service was held in the school Memorial Chapel. The church was packed even before the service was to begin, with the overflow of Sophomores, Freshmen and Un-classified students in Camp Hall listening to the service by a system of loudspeakers. The beginning was very impressive with the Choir, Seniors, trustees, and participants in the program. Favorite hymns of Mr. Elliott Speer, Dr. Robert E. Speer, and Mrs. Robert E. Speer were sung, and Dr. Speer presented a memorial address to the congregation. The address was a very touching one, and reached the hearts of all those in the chapel, and those in Camp Hall who were listening. He made us all realize even more fully what a great man had been taken from this society.

Group Party Saturday

On Saturday night, November 17th, the various organizations at the Northfield Seminary will be the hostesses to the corresponding groups at Mount Hermon to a supper, dance, and entertainment. The organizations attending will be the Press Club, Glee Club, All Hermon men, orchestra, Hermonite Board, and the High School graduates among the new men in school.

Vacation

This year the Mount Hermon students will be dismissed one day earlier than originally planned. On Tuesday noon Dec. 18th, the students will depart for their respective homes for a sixteen day Christmas vacation. In order for the office to do this it will be necessary for the students to attend classes on Wednesday after noon Nov. 28.

Sports

Last Wednesday afternoon the Mount Hermon School second soccer and football teams scored a double victory over the Williston Academy seconds. The respective scores were 4-0, and 19-6. The football team had an easy time of it to walk away with the Williston team, generally outplaying them all through the game. The Hermon team gained more than three times as much ground, and it was apparent from the very first that they were a much superior aggregation. The soccer team, at a disadvantage of having to play on unfamiliar territory, and being outweighed many pounds of the man, were also a far superior team as the score indicates.

Honors Courses Again Offered

Last year Honors courses were inaugurated at Mount Hermon School, and proved to be such a success that they are again being given to students with satisfactory grades, in other words no grade lower than 70, in any subject. It is expected that the courses will prove to be as great a success this year as they were last year.

Hermon Defeats Springfield in Cross-Country Meet

Last Saturday the Mount Hermon School cross-country team journeyed to Springfield, where they met the Springfield College freshmen in a cross-country meet. The Mount Hermon team was at a decided disadvantage, never having run the 2.8 mile course before. In spite of this, six Hermon men finished before a single Springfield freshman. The order of finishing

Northfield's Young Peoples' Social Club

A Word From Mrs. Conner

Good news has come from the Parent Teachers' Club, which voted unanimously to help the Young People's Recreational Program by regular each week volunteer service. Several women from the Fortnightly Club have offered to help. Miss Ruth Anderson has been on hand several evenings for valuable service.

Mr. Glazier, Principal of Center School, our new postmaster Lawrence Quinlan and all the high school teachers have volunteered for help. All this spells Community Service!

Last year's recreational activities were such a success, that the Club is beginning its new year with much enthusiasm. It has a live wire executive board under the leadership of the president Kenneth Leach. While last year, just a beginning was made, this year the Club is branching out upon a few new lines of interest. Under the paid leadership of Mrs. E. L. Taber a graduate from Emerson School of Oratory—a group are preparing to put on several plays this winter, and thus help to develop the local dramatic talent. It is hoped this work will eventuate in a "Little Theater" for Northfield.

A second new department will be Community Singing under Mr. I. J. Lawrence.

A special instructor of ball room dancing has been asked to meet with the Club once in two weeks, to help the young people to learn to dance and to develop the courtesies as desirable in life. This will supplement the splendid volunteer work of Mrs. Mildred Addison, who can not give as much time this year as last to the Club for all last year she never missed a week.

All these different departments of recreation are ably sustained by Leon Dunnell, whose faithfulness and artistic skill are given freely each night without pay.

This new work will necessitate each young person who attends paying ten cents this year instead of five cents. It is hoped all parents will consider this sum a wise investment, and help their youth to attend regularly. MARY ANDREWS CONNER

New East Northfield Water Supply

Health Department Official Praises Northfield Trustees

East Northfield's new water supply was dedicated last Saturday before an audience of several hundred students, trustees, and friends, most of whom climbed afoot up to the beautiful new watershed. C. I. Sterling, Jr., of the State Department of Public Health and Judge Robert C. Parker of Westfield were the principal speakers while Mr. John L. Grandin, vice president of The Northfield Schools, was the presiding officer.

"Too much cannot be said for the trustees of The Northfield Schools for their foresight in the construction of this very adequate water supply," said Mr. Sterling who represented the Commonwealth for this occasion. He emphasized the advantages of long storage of water which will be possible with 300 days reserve in the new reservoir will hold. Long exposure of sun and air is the great possible benefit in purifying the water and destroying bacteria. In conclusion Mr. Sterling said that if the Department of Public Health always had such cooperation as it received from the Northfield Schools that it would have very little trouble in carrying out its work. Others who took part in the ceremony were Mr. Wilfred W. Fry, president of the Board of Trustees, and the Rev. Dr. Boynton Merrill who made the dedicatory prayer. Several songs were offered by a group of Northfield Seminary students.

Judge Robert C. Parker of Westfield made the principal address. He gave an outline of the history of Seminary water projects from the beginning when Mr. D. L. Moody and his brother, George first pumped water from a spring on Rustic Ridge to the Birthplace in 1875.

A few dates are not only suggestive but they are illuminating, when turned upon this immediate section. It was 1875 when the brothers, George and Dwight, piped water from a spring on Rustic Ridge to the so-called Birthplace. In 1876 the so-called Homestead was attached, and in 1880 East Hall was connected and the small system, over-loaded as it was, managed to serve until 1884, when Marquand and Stone Halls were built. Another pipe, laid to the original spring, proved inadequate and recourse was had to an old-fashioned so-called "Ram" in honor of the old, which served indifferently for a few years. D. M. Weston, donor of Weston Hall, invented and installed a large, overship water wheel in the brook at Bonar Glen, to pump water from a clear spring into the water system. Later a power pump was installed to assist the water-wheel when necessary, which in turn was followed by a gas engine and triplex pump. In the meantime, Weston Hall, Betsy Moody Cottage, Talcott Library and Hillside Cottage had arrived to increase the demand for water, not to mention the new private homes being built and permitted by the generous Dwight L. "to hitch onto our system." In 1889 a pipe line was laid down Highland Avenue for the benefit of the Hotel, and incidentally, the modern houses arising on the Avenue. Two springs East of the hotel were added to the growing water system.

Revell and Holton were added to the Seminary lay-out and of course required water. The Auditorium came in 1894, the Skinner's Gymnasium in 1895, and the Hillside Cottage became a dormitory at this period. In the language of the firemen at a fire, each one added "Water." The water-system was doing its best to supply the increasing demand, during summer, fall, winter and spring and with a fair success until about 1902 when a drought appeared that caused an emergency. This resulted, not in the usual American procedure of appointing a committee, but in the hiring of Civil Engineer Coffin of Boston. Mr. Coffin made a careful survey of the surrounding adjacent country with the purpose of constructing a small reservoir to receive, store and distribute water by means of cast iron

Daily Chapel Services

By Emily Amidon

Thursday, November 8, the daily chapel service was conducted by Miss Mira B. Wilson, principal, who spoke of the valuation of good form in letter writing. The apostle Paul's letter to Philemon is a fine example of a skillfully written letter. It has good form and contains true important facts which the recipient could easily understand. Paul didn't overdo by writing too much, or vice versa. He wrote many letters which were at all times written in a light vein. He was not a man of moods who wrote what he later felt sorry for, but wrote in such a manner that he gave his fellow ministers encouragement in regard to the gospel of Christ, which they too, were preaching to fellowmen. Today, although we live in a world somewhat more modern than that of Paul's, we still find need of letter writing. If we employ the fine points which Paul used, we too should be able to send letters which will cheer the recipients heart.

Professor Frank L. Duley of the Seminary History department gave one very interesting bit of news in his chapel talk on Saturday, November 10. He told of a book which has recently been found by men in an old bookstore in Cairo, Egypt. It is a Bible which was written in the 2nd century A.D. and is the oldest one in the world other than that written in the 4th century A.D. It contains Epistles of Paul which have never before been read by man, also parts of the Old and New Testament, unread by man. Men that are able to read the language will carefully study this new book. In Colossians chapter 4, Paul speaks of an epistle to Laodicea which has never been found. It is hoped that archeologists will recover this lost epistle of Paul. The announcement of this important discovery was given by the National Library in Vienna.

The Last Rose of Summer

By Jean Olsen

Faculty, students, and visitors, who while walking on the campus, happened in front of Music Hall, must have noticed the beautiful red rose on one of the few bushes planted on the southwest corner of this building. This flower may be called the last rose of summer for it was in bloom during the first week of November. All who passed must have stopped, looked and gathered in the fragrance from this flower.

The history of this rose is a sad one, for the bush from which this flower came was planted by the parents of Leonora (Polly) Frier, in memory of their daughter who died on May 21, 1926, a few weeks before she would have graduated from the Seminary. But as all great and beautiful things must have their day, this rose is an object of the past. The flower was picked by Miss Virginia Wells, a member of the French Department at the Seminary, and sent to Mrs. Ernest Kirmann who is recuperating in Brattleboro Hospital from a serious operation.

Seminary Faculty Discuss Movies

Under the leadership of Mrs. Laura C. Tenney the regular Tuesday Seminary faculty meeting this week was devoted to a discussion of motion pictures and their relation to girls of high school age. While there are many interesting phases of the subject well worth considering and discussing, the committee in charge of the program selected a few of those which seemed of particular importance in their own group.

Mrs. Yarnelle spoke on the subject, "Movies and Conduct," presenting some, amazing facts with regard to the emotional reaction of children and young people to movies. She prefaced her remarks

Board Of Trustees Passes On Resolution

Announcement was made today of a resolution passed upon by the board of trustees of the Northfield Schools at their fall meeting in Holbrook Hall last Saturday, to the effect that "Elliott Speer, at the age 35, had achieved a measure of success granted to few men in an entire lifetime."

The committee which drew up the resolution consisted of Principal Mira B. Wilson of the Northfield Seminary, Jarvis Cromwell, and Luther A. Weigle, Dean of the Yale Divinity School.

The resolution is as follows: "Despite the sudden tragedy and loss which have marked the opening days of the current school year we are profoundly grateful for the import of the life of Elliott Speer for these schools and for his colleagues in the eight years of his association with them. That they have been historically memorable years is obvious to the most casual observer. We who have worked with him know in a deeper sense the degree of his accomplishment and the future will disclose still more of its abiding quality."

"Coming to Northfield as President of the Board of Trustees in 1926 Mr. Speer threw all the enthusiasm, idealism, and intellectual acumen of his personality into the educational project of these schools. Outstanding in the achievement of the first years here was the work entailed in planning and setting up a teachers' retirement fund, a plan which many educational institutions envy us, and without which much educational work can be hampered and much anxiety caused. In the years from 1929-1931 Mr. Speer was untiringly active in carrying forward the $3,000,000 campaign which despite the general economic discouragement of the times, resulted in pledges of $2,750,000."

"From the point of view of building operations, Mr. Speer as President of the board saw the completion of the admirable new classroom building given by Mr. Palmer to the Seminary, the completion of the two missionary cottages, and Mr. Duley's house, the building of a home for the Northfield principal, and of a swimming pool at the Seminary in memory of Mr. Henry C. Munger. At Mount Hermon the beautiful new interior of the chapel was dedicated; the crying need for a division of Crossley Hall into smaller units was met, and the old Y Building constructed out of the old storehouse."

"But Mr. Speer's work for the schools was not just in terms of assets and equipment: his interest and leadership reached out into every area of the life of the two institutions. This was especially true when in 1932, after a year's leave of absence, he took up the congenial task of headmaster at Mount Hermon, combining with it the chairmanship of the Administrative Committee. To the academic program of the schools he brought the weight of his clear thinking, familiarizing himself with every detail of the students' schedules, working out curricular changes of a particularly progressive and forward-looking nature, affiliating the schools with sound testing programs even in his brief years on the Hill. To the social life of the schools he brought the highest standards and with them an understanding and a sympathy with the life of modern young people. To the health program he gave his thought; and the fine Brattleboro Insurance Plan, in operation for the first time this fall, is the result. So far-reaching an undertaking as the building of a new reservoir for the Seminary and East Northfield is even now the evidence of his sound foresight and initiative."

"A contagious personality and a simple convincing Christian faith marked Mr. Speer's leadership of these schools. There was a quality in his life which, to boys and girls alike, made right seem attractive and wrong unworthy, which made Christianity a practical thing of courage and faith. Despite the confusion and Skepticism of much religious thinking in these particular years, all who were associated with him, from the most immature student to his academic colleagues, found their own faith and their own good purposes strengthened by contact with his."

"Though taken from us in the very prime of his life, Elliott Speer, at the age of 35, had achieved a measure of success granted to few men in an entire lifetime. The shadow which his personality cast was very long, and its influence will be splendidly exerted in these schools forever."

"Resolved, that we as trustees of the Northfield Schools, record our heartfelt appreciation of his achievements, pledging our fidelity to the cause to which he gave 'the last full measure of devotion'; and that we transmit to his family our fullest sympathy and the assurance of our constant affectionate regard for them."

Did you ever believe in fairies? I did. I have spent hours hunting for the wee people, but I never found them, for I searched too far afield. We live in Fairyland and never get away from the magic country. We walk, move and live in a place of eternal wonders. Pick up a piece of sod near your feet. It is swarming with life, the greater part of which is invisible to the naked eye. Birth, mating, death, and the everlasting search for food, all in the tiny handful of soil in our hands. They are never aware of our existence and we are almost as ignorant of theirs. Look at the bit of moss. Is it not like a miniature forest? Little fairy trees, so close-set, so dense as to shut out the sun. Are they not lovely enough for any land? And there are so many kinds of them alone. In New Zealand, there are some varieties that grow twenty inches high. But small or large, a whole world of secret life ebbs and flows in the darkness at their feet. We think of the common mushroom as a plant, but it is only a spore case. The real plant is a delicate silken web that gropes its silent way unseen, in the soil beneath.

We are apt to consider that the world was made for us and that beauty was primarily created for our enjoyment. But what of the beauties that we cannot see? For what eyes were they fashioned? The exquisite markings and patterns on the shells of microscopic creatures in a drop of sea-water; the gardens that bloom in the depths of the sea; the countless flowers that grow and perish each day in the jungles. The whole earth is Fairyland, with wee people dancing on every meadow and lawn and holding Fairy Court under our very eyes.

Many people cannot see beauty in that which is strange. They demand that all things conform to a set pattern with which they are familiar. The odd, the individual, are to be avoided. But we all have one peculiar trait. Once let our interest be awakened and the object of our solicitude takes on charm. Beauties appear, which up to that moment have been hidden and a hundred new fascinations are disclosed to the eager eye. What more enchanting way could be found to spend leisure hours than getting acquainted with our wee neighbors; than reaching out in interest and understanding toward the small folk, whom we cannot see. We have no right to turn aside because they are not as we are. For deep down in the heart of every living thing, plant or animal that great gift of God, LIFE, quivers and pulses. Life flows through the world like a mighty river, giving as much, or little, but the source is the same. We cannot see the beginning or the end; we can only sense in our hearts, the splendor and divine origin of the gift. To each on is given as much as they are able to use, no more, no less. The needs of the tiny folk are supplied as well as our own. We are both kin to the microbe and earthworm and children of the Living God.

South Vernon was well represented. Walter Bruce played Taps on the cornet at the close of the exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Long and son Alfred, Jr., and a friend of New York City were Saturday night guests of his sister, Mrs. E. P. Edson. Sunday morning Mrs. Edson, accompanied them to Lexington, Mass. to attend the 50th Wedding Anniversary of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Long of Collinsville, Mass. which was held at the home of another sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kerrigan. Miss Ethelyn Kerrigan and her friend brought her aunt, Mrs. Edson home Monday.

Red Cross Drive At Mt. Hermon

The annual Red Cross Drive on the campus began today under the faculty direction of Roy R. Hatch. The student canvassing will be carried on by the presidents of the respective dormitories. It is hoped that $60 can be raised by the students, and $100 among the other residents. Dormitories registering one hundred per cent subscription are entitled to a large poster recognizing the response of that group.

by an interesting biographical sketch of Herbert Blumer of Chicago University, whose book "Movies and Conduct" she used as a basis for her discussion. Miss Arnett reported an interesting experimental study sponsored by the National Council of Teachers of English. It proved that in that instance, at least, movies may be used to serve a definite purpose in education and that taste in choosing pictures to see may be improved and educated.

The possibilities of using motion pictures in the classroom was discussed next. One advantage lies in the irresistible appeal which film presentation makes to children and young people. It is not enough, however, for them merely to be entertained. To get the best results they must be taught how to appreciate motion pictures. Miss Reynolds presented this subject and showed through records of experiments with various groups of young people that it is quite possible to increase in a large degree an interest and appreciation of the best and most worth while films. Through a series of questionnaires the students have various phases of motion picture production brought to their attention, which stimulates their interest. The use of movies in the classroom is no longer in an early experimental stage. It is a definite part of the program of many schools. An official journal publishes each month articles, papers and reports of experiments by teachers and cinema experts all over the world.

Miss Elsie Scott presented a practical side to the subject "Educational Talking Pictures." She spoke of some films in use which did not seem practical, but she laid great emphasis upon films which might be used to advantage in the field of science. History and allied subjects also might be presented with more interest on the part of students by the use of films.

There followed a short informal discussion. One subject which aroused much interest was the "Motion Picture Block" which makes it necessary for the local motion picture theatre to present inferior films in connection with a good one. It was hoped that this situation might be remedied.

On Monday, November 19, the Press Club will go to Keene where they will visit the office of the "Keene Sentinel" and the Cheshire Engraving Company.

An institute on health education in the secondary schools was held at Springfield, Mass., on Wednesday, November 7. The principal speakers were Dr. Henry R. Chadwick, State Commissioner of Health, who spoke on "Reorganization of Chadwick Clinics, especially in relation to the High Schools," and Dr. Jesse F. Williams, Teachers College, Columbia University, who spoke on "Basic Principles in the Organization of Health Education." Among the organizations under whose auspices the institute was held were the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League, State Department of Public Health, and Franklin County Public Health Association. Those who attended from Northfield Seminary were Miss Homet, Miss Johnson of the Biology Department, Miss Field, Miss Hubner of the Physical Education Department, Miss Ramsdell, head nurse, and Miss Daisy Smith of the Home Economics Department.

Thursday, November 8, several Seminary faculty attended a meeting in the interests of the Red Cross at the Deerfield Academy. Those present from Northfield were Miss Davis, Mrs. Moody, Miss Handy, Mrs. Briggs, Miss Daisy W. Smith, and Miss Smith of the Kenarden office.

Miss Inez Lauritano, winner of the Walter Vaurenberg prize, gave a recital at Northfield, in Russell Sage Chapel, November 4. Her sister, Iris, was her very able accompanist and also pianist. Miss Lauritano, with great skill and beauty of playing, showed herself a true artist and lover of her instrument, the violin. For six years she studied with the late Professor Quer. At present she is a soloist with the National Broadcasting Symphony Orchestra.

Iris, 15 year old child prodigy, beyond being an exceptional pianist, has talent in costume designing and in fine arts drawing. The program at the Sunday evening hour of music was as follows:

Ciaccone	II	Vitali-Quer
Symphonie Espagnole	Lalo
Allegro non Troppo
Andante
Rounds
Intermission
Scherzo in B flat minor	Chopin-Siloti

(a) Ave Maria	Schubert
(b) La plus que lente	Debussy
(c) Scherzo-Tarantelle	Weiniawski

A delightful informal studio hour was held for music students and faculty at Miss Wilson's house last Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 7. Sandy lent atmosphere, parading around the room, while students played the piano, violin, or sang. A similar studio hour is planned for December 5.

Saturday afternoon the Sigma Delta Club held their monthly meeting in East Hall. The meeting was called to order by Virginia Bruce, the president, and a short play "The Bungalow Bride" was presented by the members from Marquand Hall.

The Tau Pi Society held its first business meeting and tea in Gould cafeteria under the supervision of Miss Dorethea Shute. Miss Eloise Vanderhoop of Gay Head, Mass., was elected president; Sally Gildbert of East Hampton, Conn., vice president; and Jane Ann Bradley of Burlington, Vt., secretary. A committee was chosen to select the annual play, the cast for which will be chosen this week.

Social Notes

Next Saturday evening, November 17, Brandon De Cou is to present to Northfield Seminary, in Silverthorne Hall, another of his "Imperial Peiping and Manchukuo." Mr. De Cou usually spends his summers in travel and the collection of more "masterpieces of art and photography" with which, supplemented by his own jolly humor, he entertains his audiences throughout the country.

While the faculty attended a reception last Saturday evening at Silverthorne Hall, given by the trustees of the Northfield Schools, the students saw the movie "Cyano de Bergerac" in Silverthorne Hall. The play, by Rostland, is called "the finest dramatic poem of half a century." Cyano, in 1660, was the poet, swordsman, and philosopher of Paris; the greatest figure, yet the most pathetic; a heroic man with a disfigurement in the form of a hideous nose, which came near ruining his life. Yet at the end, with his white plume still valiantly waving, and his hidden passion of love yet unknown through life, Cyano wakes to the evening of his life: falsehood, pride, cowardice, prejudice. He dies a majestic figure. Bergerac, though not historical, is based on fact.

There was also a Pat Sullivan production, "Mickey Mouse Ruid the Ruiger," and also a reel on skiing instruction.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Ingalls were the dinner guests at Revell Hall last Wednesday, November 7th.

Miss Linger of Marquand Hall had lunch last Saturday noon with Miss Margaret Mensel at Revell.

High School Notes

Our observance of Education Week was continued Wednesday by Miss Hunt who by giving examples showed that education can be obtained against great odds.

On Thursday, Miss Mann described schools in Suarta, Athens and Medieval France, showing how different ideas of education were in those times.

Mr. Taylor also had charge of the Armistice Day program on Friday. After reading Gov. Elvy's proclamation he introduced Dr. George Bronson who served as a hospital chaplain during the war. After hearing his description of war, no one could possibly have any desire to go to war.

Since there are so few boys in the Senior class, several underclassmen are taking part in the Senior play.

The Senior play will be given this year on Tuesday, Nov. 27 at eight o'clock at the Town Hall.

The play to be presented, "The Blue Bag," is a three act farce. The plot offers many exciting as well as amusing incidents. Allan Ross pursues a girl of unknown identity, but distinguished by a blue bag she carries. His pursuit brings him to an isolated community boasting one hotel. Here he finds not one, but three girls, with blue handbags. From this point complications increase rapidly. Chatty, an ignorant but shrewd maid, and Mr. and Mrs. Macklin, the hotel proprietors provide humor in abundance.

The cast follows: Chatty Eleanor Long
Mrs. Macklin Margaret Gray
Mr. Macklin Philip Mann
Enid Louton Marian Leach
Lettie Long Marie Havie
Molly Keefe Martha Stebbins
George Reynolds Joseph Rutinski
Allan Ross Raymond Plotzky
Bill Harrington Stanley Newton
Anton McDonald Wm. Ross
Jim Keefe Lawrence Glazier

Ladies' Night At

Northfield Brotherhood

Ladies Night for the Northfield Brotherhood will be enjoyed next Tuesday at the Congregational Church vestry, with a chicken supper beginning at 6:30. This is the night when every member brings his wife or some lady friend to share the supper, the fun, and the program. The spirit of Thanksgiving will be in evidence.

Horace H. Morse will give a twenty minute talk on current events as soon as the short business meeting has been completed. The music and community singing will be led by Philip Porter, Professor J. J. Lawrence, and Lester P. White. The "fun" will be assured by A. P. Fitt.

Father, Co-Workers Pay Honor To Elliott Speer's Memory

with firmer tread, more clear sight and courage and manliness. The thought of him ever strengthening weak knees and challenges all that is manly." "He is one of the bright and shining lights of our day," writes Tertius Van Dyke. And Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin says: "As I have seen him in recent years I came to admire the wisdom, the utter selflessness, the manifest faith in God with which he approached his question. One loved him for his charm, his humor, his gaiety a spirit, and there was this maturing man of large dimensions looking out at you from under the youthful face and figure. I confidently expected Elliott to become one of the great leaders in the cause of Christ in his generation."

And this is what has passed out from us said Dr. Speer. We have no words to measure our loss, our loss in the family circle, where he was a ceaseless joy, the loss of the school and the nation and the church. His going lays on us all a holier duty to keep the sacred trust of the great tradition, to seek the light of God on our present tasks in a changing world, to see that no harm comes to the School into whose foundations have been built such priceless lives, to make sure that the future shall bring all that was in Elliott Speer's clear vision and brave will.

Trustees Meet

The fall meeting of the trustees of the Northfield Schools was held in Holbrook Hall at Mount Hermon on Saturday morning. A committee of five appointed to consider the selection of a headmaster to fill the place left vacant by the death of Elliott Speer, The committee consist of Frederick E. Newton of Andover, chairman; John Stewart Baker of New York; Dean Luther A. Weirle of the Yale Divinity School, Dr. Roynton Merrill of Newton, and Miss Mira B. Wilson, principal of Northfield Seminary. Dr. Merrill is a newly elected member of the Board of Trustees, his election having been the first item of business considered at Saturday's meeting. He is an alumnus of Mount Hermon and has long been active in school affairs. The meeting was the best attended in the history of the Schools with 19 of the 24 trustees being present.

Alumni Counsellors Meeting

The semi-annual meeting of the Mt. Hermon Board of Alumni Counsellors was held Saturday afternoon with Frederick E. Newton of Andover presiding. The meeting took place immediately after the dedication of the Seminary reservoir, many of the counsellors having been present at the ceremony. Other officers of the council who were present include Vice President Paul M. Thomas of New York; treasurer, George McEwan of East Northfield; and Albert E. Roberts, secretary, also of East Northfield. The meeting was well attended and only routine business was considered.

Trustees Reception

The Chateau on Saturday evening was the scene of a reception given by the Trustees to the faculties of the Seminary and Mount Hermon. Dr. John R. Mott, international Y. M. C. A. and missionary leader and a co-chairman of last summer's General Conference, was the guest of honor. During the later part of the evening the guest assembled in the large reception hall and listened to an address by Dr. Mott on the topic "Northfield's Opportunity Today." The speaker recalled the fact that he was a member of the "Class of 1886," a name applied to that held in the summer of that year famous original student conference under the leadership of Mr. D. L. Moody. The famous Christian leader again declared that there has never been a time in the history of the world when rising spiritual tides were more in evidence and he emphasized the opportunities of the Northfield Schools to furnish leaders who will take advantage of these rising tides. Teachers are the most important leaders today even before parents and preaches, said Dr. Mott.

pipes of adequate size. This was the first serious attempt to solve the difficult problem of a domestic supply of water for the campus and East Northfield. Assisted by Bonar Glen in a dry season, the constructed reservoir served well to supply all needs, especially after it was enlarged in 1907. Home Science, Gould, Sage Chapel, Music Hall and Kenarden arose at various points on the beautiful campus and called for water. Homes increased in number and required water. In fact, the new Commission on Public Utilities, much to the displeasure of Mr. W. R. Moody, informed the authorities that they were a "water company." The next year, 1915, the Massachusetts Board of Health requested filter in Bonar Glen, and the installation of an electric pump for the purpose of sizable secondary supply in a dry season. Even with this provision, Mr. Ambert G. Moody and others had more than one day of anxiety when the rain was few and far between, and the storage only 24 hours supply. Palmer Hall, the Laundry, a new pipe line on Main Street in East Northfield, all contributed to the growing problem.

The State authorities were cooperative but they insisted that an additional supply must be water of superior quality. 1931 and 1932 were by no means wet years and the situation became demanding. In 1933 a serious effort began to relieve an intolerable condition by the construction of a sizable storage reservoir above the original reservoir, which would meet the State requirements of purity, relieve all worry over an adequate present supply, and be of sufficient capacity for the future.

It was at this time that the well-known planning for the future, which has always characterized the activities of all the Moody family, came into favorable notice once more. Mr. A. L. Moody, his brother George, his son Will and his nephew Ambert, present here this afternoon, had been interested in securing by purchase unimproved land on the watershed of Louisiana Brook, as it became possible from time to time, even as far back as the "gay and festive 90's." The result of that wise program has been that when it became feasible in 1933 to locate and plan for a sizable storage reservoir 1500 feet above the useful but inadequate reservoir of that date, the watershed of 28 Acres was nearly complete, in advance.

You can readily appreciate that the location of the new reservoir is quite ideal for every purpose. To Mr. Ambert Moody with his close association with all the material development of the Seminary Campus and the adjacent community, it is of special significance that his father, George F. Moody, was the first to conceive of the present location for storage reservoir. It was Mr. William Nichols, so long associated with Northfield affairs, who made the first survey in 1900.

A few additional facts about this splendid new reservoir may not be amiss. Capacity is 30 million gallons and removes all fear of drought. Construction is modern and scientific, covering 8 acres, with an earthen dam, 135 feet thick at base, with a cement core or center wall 48 inches thick at base. A rainfall 1 inch will equal one-fourth of the total reservoir capacity. 95 different employees worked on the construction job, all from the Northfield Schools organization and supplemented by local men who otherwise would probably have been unemployed. Mr. Lewis Thorpe of Boston was the consulting engineer in charge, and Mr. Polhemus, Superintendent of grounds and buildings, gave personal superintendences to this project.

A mere incident it is but nevertheless illuminating to state that the large iron pipe between the two reservoirs originally served at Mt. Hermon School, and now is beginning another career of usefulness at Northfield Seminary.

My personal association with Northfield began in 1909 and has continued rather intimately up to the present time, a period of 25 years. I have been able to observe the growth, development and administration of a remarkable institution, and always "with the Heavenly Father in the midst." I have never lost my admiration for the constructive methods used, all so wisely conceived and so admirably administered. This reservoir, ample, firm and pure, fits perfectly into the general scheme of things, and will contribute in no small manner to comfort, convenience and co-ordination of students, officials, teachers and guests of the present and the future.

Perchance I can close these remarks on a fine note no better way than to quote the words of a leading official of the Northfield Schools present here today as follows:

"The site of this reservoir and much of the land of the watershed was territory over which I roamed as a boy, so that it naturally catches my imagination to note that a dream of my father, George F. Moody, who went to his reward in 1905, has been realized, and that this rough old pasture land has become the source of one of the great necessities of life for the students and Conference guests and other friends of Northfield. In other words, it is not a far stretch of the imagination to say that these rough hillsides have been turned into sources of streams of blessings to mankind which under our Heavenly Father's kind, governing care will without doubt flow on for many years to come."

In the first ten there were eight Hermon runners to two of Springfield. This is an excellent of the fine caliber of work being done by Mr. Bayley, the track coach.

Clubs Have Joint Meeting

Last Sunday evening the Good Government Club and the Pierian Literary Society held a joint meeting. Almost all of the members of the two clubs were present, and a program was arranged which proved to be very enjoyable. It is hoped that more of these meetings can be arranged for the future.

INTERESTING DAYS

The Swiss poet and theologian Johann Caspar Lavater, who founded the so-called science of physiognomy, was born at Zurich Nov. 16, 1741. He is best known for his "Swiss Songs."

The English historical and landscape painter Francis Danby was born Nov. 16, 1793, in Ireland—some authorities say at Wexford. He won his place in the Royal Academy.

The greatest name in Dutch literature is Joost van den Vondel, the dramatist and poet, who was born at Cologne Nov. 17, 1587.

The great soprano Galli-Curci made her debut in this country with the Chicago Opera Co., Nov. 18, 1916, as Gilda in "Rigoletto." The much loved American humorist writer Robert J. Burdette died Nov. 19, 1914. He was also a Baptist clergyman.

Those gallant knights of romantic filmland Reginald Denny and Robert Armstrong both have Nov. 20 as their natal day. It is also the anniversary of a huge and terribly destructive tidal wave that swept Jamaica in 1912.

John Bale, Bishop of Ossing, known as "Billious Bale" because of his notoriously bad temper, was born Nov. 21, 1495, in Suffolk, at Cove near Dunwich. He wrote moralities (religious plays) and compiled what was perhaps the first chronological catalog of British writers, which he published in 1548.

FANS AND PARASOLS

The loveliest fans and parasols I have ever seen, relics of a more graceful and decorative age than ours, are to be seen in a collection of beautiful old laces in Portland, Oregon. There is, for example, a black Chantilly lace fan with dark mother-of-pearl sticks, glossy and reflecting the colors of a peacock's tail. A parasol of the same lace of the early 19th century is mounted over cream silk to display the exquisite pattern of the lace. Another parasol of black Chantilly (which seems to have been the favored type of lace for sun shades) has a handle of ivory carved in a beautiful woman's figure, with a pigeon in her hand, surrounded by stalks of finely carved wheat heads. Valenciennes lace fan in white had its fragile opal tinted pearl sticks carved in an intricately lacy pattern.

ONE-PIECE MEAL

A Spanish casserole dish that can be made and set aside to be heated up quickly, and therefore furnish a quick meal, "all in one piece," was described over the radio to me by Ann Warner, and I am passing the recipe on to you. Use your Dutch oven, or another pot with a tight fitting cover. Heat it hot. Pour in 4 tablespoons olive oil heated (drippings, salad oil or shortening may be substituted if convenient). Cut 1 lb. fresh salt pork, from the lean shoulder, as it is largely for the flavor. Add 2 large onions chopped fine, and 1-2 cup chopped green pepper, also 1 can red pimento for color, chopped fine. Put in 1-4 lb. noodles, preferably the wide ones, and a can of tomato soup or an equal amount of fresh tomatoes. Rinse the can out with 1 or 1-2 cans of water, and add that, with 1 teaspoon salt and a good shake of pepper, about 1-8 teaspoon, and the same of paprika. Then stir in 1-2 teaspoon of celery salt of 1-4 cup of finely chopped celery, and 1-2 teaspoon garlic salt (which does not scent the breath as whole garlic does) or a clove of garlic chopped fine. Simmer it all 1-2 hrs. over a low heat, stirring occasionally. Before serving, add 1-2 cup grated American Cheese, and when bringing it to the table, sprinkle a little more cheese over the top. If you have dabs of peas, carrots, or any vegetables left over from other meals, in the cold closet, these may be added to the noodles, or macaroni, or if you prefer you may use spaghetti or boiled rice. It will be even more flavorful if Parmesan cheese is used instead of the American.

CANADA DRESSING

From the Land of the Maple Leaf comes this salad dressing rule: Melt 4 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, add 1 tablespoon flour and stir till smooth but do not let it brown. Add 1 cup milk and bring it just to a boil. Put the pan into another of hot water. Beat together 3 eggs with 1 tablespoon each sugar and mustard and celery salt and a pinch of cayenne. Then add juice of a lemon or 1-2 cup vinegar. Stir until it boils and thickens to a custard, which should take about 5 minutes. Cool and use on salad.

PRUNE PUDDING

The Church And War

Text — Nos. 6, 26

"The Lord lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace."

Warren Francis Low
Colrain, Mass.

When we try to think of the Christian Church we have to think of an institution whose whole program is the uplift and betterment of mankind. Its entire aim is the betterment of the individual person, and so through the individual, ultimately to bless the whole human race. When we think of war we are thinking a program directly opposite to the program of the church.

The terms church and war contradict each other in every respect. They are so hostile to each other in all their meaning that there can be no genuine reconciliation of one to the other.

To accomplish a compromise would be thought plunging into chaos. And war is always chaos.

War is always a ruthless procedure. I assume that the church is the agent, the institution, embodying the Christian religion. If the church and the Christian religion are not one and the same thing, yet the one stands for the other, and the other for the one. Now the Christian religion, in its real essence, is always sanity, and law, and order.

War is always loss, destruction of life and property, and all too often the downfall of nations and peoples.

War is an insane procedure, ignoring all law but one, and that one the law of wholesale destruction and triumph, right or wrong.

The Christian religion, in its real essence again, means always the salvation of men, in the widest meaning of that term; always the conservation of spiritual values, and intending the uplift of nations and peoples. The Christian religion goes forth to save. War goes forth to destroy. War always engenders hate, increasing hostility, seeking revenge, and of appalling cost of life and treasure.

The Christian religion, in its real essence, again, always engenders LOVE, seeks to create wholesome fellowship, life's spiritual vision, inculcates moral worth, strenuously demands that, seeks to uplift mankind to enlighten the individual, and the entire betterment of human life.

War is always destructive of spiritual vision, is not concerned about moral worth. Even Napoleon was amazed at the wretched moral material by which he had to make war. War is the power that can only kill, destroy, lay waste, degrade, and blind men and nations to all interhuman outlook and achievement.

War does not build up, it throws down. Several civilizations have been destroyed and blotted out by war.

In fact the grand whole of civilization has been evolved, built up, advanced, not so much by war, as in spite of war.

The procedure of war leads forever down the grade; The Christian Church seeks forever to lead up the grade.

Humanity must make the grade or be lost. If war were pushed to its uttermost limit, it would destroy Humanity entire. If the Christian religion embodied in the Church, were pushed to its uttermost limit, it would uplift, enlighten, and save every last human being on earth. The Christian religion means the saving of life and all treasure. War means only destruction, and the destruction of every life and every treasure on earth. If the nations enter war to destroy war they will have to stop the war in order to prevent the utter destruction of the nations.

The world can enter war now only by making a plunge into the abyss. If we should plunge into war now in order to make Democracy safe, it would be the surest and swiftest course for the utter destruction of Democracy.

The enterprise of the Christian Church is the salvation of the world.

The end and achievement of war now would be the destruction of the world. To enter war now for the safety of the nations would be like sliding down hill seeking to reach the summit.

The Christian Church represents God, stands for the salvation of the soul, and the attainment of Heaven.

In our present state of civilization, war stands, and moves against—God, represents the devil, and illustrates hell.

How then can the Christian Church take any part in war?

Now let us change our subject as I seriously fear facts will force us to change it.

Supposing we try to think the Nations and War. That makes an amazing change. It makes a change in outlook and in thought and action. The nation is not in the church; not yet, but the church is in the nation. In Russia the nation was in the church under its former ecclesiastical tyranny.

Look what has happened, and note the state of Russia now. Ecclesiastical tyranny has produced atheism and rotten morality. In Spain the nation was in the church. Look at Spain now in its effort to free itself from the church.

In Mexico the nation was in the church, now we see the nation repudiating the church, trying to free itself from its ecclesiastical tyranny. In every country where the nation was in the church we see the same thing, the same effort of the nation seeking to free itself from the church. Austria illustrates it all vitally. Germany illustrates it in a unique fashion because the church is so divided in itself. Supposing the nation, the United States should be thrust into war. Put it more correctly. Supposing that war should be thrust upon the United States.

What must we do then? It may be safe to say that the United States will never go into war. If we are ever in war again it will be because war will have been thrust upon us. In that case what is, what will be, the solemn duty of every citizen of the nation? This would be an exceedingly serious problem facing every citizen of the nation. To save the nation would then be to save everything which the nation embodies. To save the nation under those conditions would be the only means of saving the church itself.

There is great hostility in the nations of Europe, and in Japan against the United States. There is great jealousy against us there. Now supposing, what we may well pray to God may never happen; supposing that these nations should combine against the United States, with Italy and Russia joining them in the great enterprise.

What ought we to do under such conditions? This is not a wild supposition. It may be the actual condition that we shall have to face in the next hundred years.

This matter of war or no war is not a matter that will be decided forever by tomorrow evening. It involves the next hundred years, and it may be the next twenty years merely.

Under these conditions will the nation fold its arms, and settle down in its easy chairs, and watch the nations come and take? Will the members of the Christian Church hide their heads in the sand, and flatly refuse to defend their country, their church, their homes, their families, their institutions, and allow the invaders a free field, a free course to take the nation and all it stands for? Will they do that on the grounds that a church member should take no part in war under any possible condition?

No there is not a man that lives on earth that hates war more than I hate it. Nor seems to me to be the maddest folly that nations and peoples can indulge in. It seems to me the most insane way of settling human problems. It is revealed to be thus insane by the fact that the problems must be solved at the council table after the war is over, and then in nearly every case, those at the council table have become so wrought upon by the war that they are, in some serious measure, insanely unfit to sit in council, and try to solve the problems before them.

If the Council can be formed with sane, wise and patient men before the war, not after the war, then it would seem to me that this world would need war no more, and Humanity would thus be advanced in wholesome fashion and for the good progress of mankind.

We have seen this done once at least in splendid fashion. When Daniel Webster and Lord Ashburton seated themselves at the council table to settle our North East boundary, they both went to the task with a wholesome regard for each other, and each with a wholesome regard for the other's nation and claim. Yet for years had this matter hung fire in the minds of Englishmen and Americans. They went to their task with the determination to settle this matter in place. It is an event in our nation's history emblazoned with splendor.

Now what conclusion do we come to herein? We come to no "cast iron" conclusion, so to speak. It is not possible for a citizen of the United States to conclude, and affirm that he will take no part in any war, under any and every condition that the nation finds itself at some future time, if he loves his country, and means to stand by in loyalty and fidelity to his responsibilities and duties as a free citizen living under the protection of his country's flag, and receiving the blessings his country and nation provide. Somebody may say, "you have not arrived at any conclusion at all." Exactly so, and that saves me from being unwise, and from leaving my country in the lurch, and from stealing any citizenship, and leaving it to others to defend that citizenship. I was in the world war, at the age of 53 years, nine months in lecture work in England, Scotland and France lecturing to more than 200,000 of our men in uniform, besides English camps, and I am not now going to call myself a fool for taking my part in my country's service in its tremendous struggle against despotism, and a devilish scheme of world domination. I hate war! I love peace! If the foolish ones thrust war upon my country, and seek to take away the government of my nation, I shall fight as best I can in defense of country, of nation, of home, of wife and children and the peaceless institutions bequeathed to us all by our fathers and builders of this great nation.

The nation will live long and be a blessing to mankind if we defend it from every evil, and seek to make it a glory to God and a blessing to mankind.

"The Lord lift up His countenance upon us and give us peace!"
